St. Louis 5, Missouri

Dear Mr. Newman:

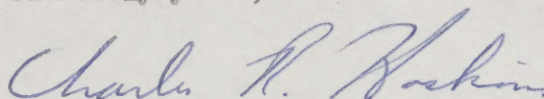

Your letter of August 8 was waiting for me upon my return to National Bank of Detroit.

Since I had not received a reply from you before I left for Fort Riley, Kansas, I spent the night in a motel on Route 40 Bypass north of St. Louis and called your home. Your housekeeper answered, saying that you and your wife were on a trip, I believe, to Africa. She further stated that you would be back by Sunday, August 6, so I called again last Saturday on my way back to Detroit. This time you and your wife were in Chicago. (Travel much??!!)

I realize you will have attended the A.N.A. convention before you see this letter. I wish I could be there to hear your speech on the 1804 Dollar. However, I am sure Admiral Dodson will be able to give me the gist of what you said.

I doubt that I will be in St. Louis for the next few months, but if you are planning another trip to Chicago before cold weather sets in I may be able to meet you there for a few hours on the weekend. I believe at this point I may have a considerable amount of information on twentieth century coin designers which would be of interest to you.

Sincerely yours,

Charles R. Hoskins
